Discover FBC - March 31

Next Sunday, March 31, I will personally host Discover FBC, a one-session information class for newcomers to First Baptist Church Statesboro. If you've been attending a few weeks or a few months, I invite you to join me for this informal time. It will be a Q&A format, with plenty of time to provide information about myself, this church, and other items of interest.

I will explain how this church works, who is eligible for church membership, and why we do certain things and not others. This is a "no strings attached" meeting with no obligation, so I hope you will join me for this special gathering.

We will meet next Sunday at 10:00 am in the Averitt Room, located near the circular drive-thru entrance of the Perry Fellowship Hall. There will be signs to point the way, and the room is easy to find. If needed, drop your children off at our secure preschool and children's area first, and then join us for in the Averitt Room. There's no need to call ahead—just show up next week, and we'll be ready for you.

Invitation to Easter

Easter Sunday is only four weeks away, and I encourage you to consider inviting a friend, coworker, or neighbor to be your guest on that special day. LifeWay Research recently reported that 34% of unchurched people would be willing to attend a worship service if personally invited by a friend or coworker. That means 1 out of 3 people you invite is highly likely to attend with you.

Do you have someone in your web of personal relationships that is waiting for an invitation to be your guest on Easter? We are making available invite cards and yard signs to help you in this process, but no amount of material can replace a personal invitation. Come to Easter on April 21, but don't come alone. Bring a guest, coworker, or friend with you.
