From the Pastor

What's Next?

How many times in life have you come to an experience and wondered, "What's next?" We certainly are living in such times right now, and our routines and schedules have been turned upside down with issues related to the COVID-19 coronavirus. A state of emergency has been declared, and life is far from its usual rhythm.

During a season of upheaval such as this, how should believers respond? How should a local church respond?

Here are a few practical things our church is doing:

---We will have live worship services on March 22 and March 29 via live streaming available on YouTube, Facebook, and our church website. We ask our members not to gather on those days but to join us online for live music and preaching. We've not made any decision yet about Sunday worship services beyond these dates.

---No midweek activities will be held over the next two weeks, which includes the cancellation of the children's event, Easter Eggstravaganza, on April 1.

---Precautions and protocols have been put in place at our church facilities to increase the protection to our staff members and others who need to be onsite.

---Online Giving is available for members to give their offerings conveniently each week.

Here are some ways you can respond personally:

---Make informed, wise, and healthy decisions for your family, especially for those in high-risk categories.

---Demonstrate to an unbelieving world that your trust is in God, and difficult days are times to walk by faith with peace and joy.

---Find ways to serve your neighbors and community. Many people have deep fears and lots of questions, and your kind acts of Christian love and concern will be a Gospel witness of your faith, pointing people to hope that is found in Jesus Christ.
